Dear families and community,

As promised in our previous communication, we are excited to share comprehensive parent resources to support your students during the school programming and instructional suspension period.

We have built a dedicated website for parent/support providers and students to access the at-home resources: www.mantecausd.net/homesupports. These resources are grade specific and span across multiple subjects such as math, English, and science. While we understand you may be working from home or working from the office, we have provided helpful tips to creating a daily schedule.

Please know, these are simply resources for you and your student to implement at home. There are no new homework assignments given during this suspension period (March 23rd- April 3rd) however, teachers may be providing remedial resources to support previously taught material.

We will continue to make every effort to communicate and update information in a timely fashion. We appreciate your patience and understanding as we work together through this difficult and uncertain time.

Teachers and staff have returned from spring break and are preparing for short-term and long-term transitions to a distance learning model, should we need to implement one.

We hope you are taking care and taking care of each other.
